William Hudd

Professional guitarist and composer William Hudd first picked up the guitar aged eight and was soon delighting his audiences with the popular rock tunes of the 1960's & 70's.

On hearing and later meeting the great Andres Segovia, William was inspired to explore the depth and versatility of the classical guitar.

His mission..." To engage with the audience...and to master any piece of music regardless of style and genre...from 'Bach to Black Sabbath' and everything in between". This remains his mantra and he provides an exciting performance that takes us on a journey through time.

What people say when they hear Bill play:

"Hard to believe that William began his musical journey playing Jimi Hendrixrock music's loss was ultimately classical music's gain!"

"His playing did the talking and sometimes it shouted, sometimes it whispered and sometimes it wept"

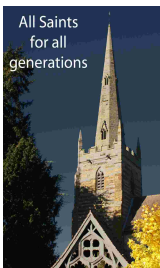

"His own works were truly impressive, in fact I preferred many of them to the established pieces"

"It was so clear and so beautiful, I nearly cried"

Guitar through the Ages

This recital features works by legendary composers: Scarlatti, Bach, Weiss, Sor, Tarrega, Albeniz, Granados plus William's own compositions including his deeply atmospheric 'Nocturne'.

Expect to be moved, inspired and entertained in equal measure.

All Saints for All Generations

Ladbroke Church is an architectural gem but over 700 years old and suffering the ravages of time.

The project will repair the church building and share our amazing church, village and natural heritage.
