NOVEMBER 2025

WELCOME

WELCOME to our Matins service for All Souls which will be led by Rev'd Dr Anthony Rustell. A valuable time to remember loved ones we have lost. There will be time for a cup of tea or coffee and a chat afterwards.

In the past, our Remembrance Sunday liturgy has comprised a shortened version of Matins but this year, next week, The Rev'd Caroline Lazenby will preside over a slightly adapted Sung Eucharist interspersed with a Requiem Mass and The Whyte Effect will sing the Requiem by Gabriel Fauré.

FAURÉ composed this in 1888 when he was in his forties, quite probably in response to the recent death of his father. Shortly after its first performance, Fauré's mother also died, giving the work an added poignancy. In its sequence of movements the Requiem departs significantly from the standard liturgical text. Fauré included two new sections, the lyrical Pie Jesu, and the transcendent In Paradisum with its soaring vocal line. He also omitted the Dies Irae and Tuba Mirum, which for most composers was an opportunity to exploit full dramatic forces. Consequently, the prevailing mood is one of peacefulness and serenity, and the work has often been described as a requiem without the Last Judgment.

In a 1902 interview Fauré said "It has been said that my Requiem does not express the fear of death, and someone has called it a lullaby of death. But it is thus that I see death: a happy deliverance, an aspiration towards happiness above, rather than as a painful experience."

The only movement we will not be singing is the Offertorium (which is long), and the balance of the movements are not all in their original order.

Please do come and hear this remarkable, and very accessible, choral work. Eloise Yates will also sounding The Last Post and Reveille during the traditional Act of Remembrance which will form the central focus of the service.

LEST WE FORGET

WE read the names of the men 'who went forth from this parish at the call of duty' every year and nearly twenty years ago a member of the congregation, the late Margaret Maynard, saw that although the short lives of the three Cubitt brothers were

A DAY IN AUTUMN

It will not always be like this,
The air windless, a few last
Leaves adding their decoration
To the trees' shoulders, braiding the cuffs
Of the boughs with gold; a bird preening
In the lawn's mirror. Having looked up
From the day's chores, pause a minute,
Let the mind take its photograph
Of the bright scene, something to wear
Against the heart in the long cold.

well documented little was known about the other men except within their families.

She began several years of research which has resulted in her superb website www.ranmorewarmemorial.info and the leaflets in the chapel and the moving stories of Fred Buckland and the others in the frame on the north wall of the nave.

Perhaps the most moving and simplest memorial of all is the small wooden battlefield cross for Capt Harry Cubitt on the wall in the chapel and the larger one in the doorway made when he was moved to his final resting place.

At the end of the war a commission was established to bring these battlefield crosses home when the cemeteries had been established and the headstones made. These simple wooden crosses can be found in many parts of the country.

The collection will go to the Royal British Legion Poppy Appeal. We will remember them.

BENEFICE FINANCES

DURING the recent clergy vacancy, the Benefice of St. Martins Dorking, St Marys Pixham and St Barnabas Ranmore was excused the considerable cost of paying the parish share to the Diocese.

Now that we have Anthony, our Priest-in-Charge, in post the parish share has been reintroduced to the Benefice. This annual "voluntary" charge for the Benefice is in the order of £70,000 this year. We are in discussion within the Benefice and with the Diocese about the financial strain the parish share is creating and how it may be managed. The outcome of these discussions will be shared with everyone.

The Churchwardens

Spirituality Matters ...

A window on God

YOU may be a church attender. You may pray regularly. You may love the liturgy, the music, the building you worship in. But at times we decide we don't want to go to church, prayer feels dry, the usual words of the service seem – just that – usual, and God seems far away. Or maybe none of these things other than a sense of something missing and we long to relate to God in a new way; to relate to God in freshness or maybe really finding God for the first time.

And so our spirituality is in disarray and what are we to do?

Here is a question for you:

Have you ever thought about who is God for you?

Depending upon how God has been presented to you, whether as a child or later in your life, your view may have changed over the years. Perhaps you experience feelings at various levels of intuition, or have an interest in mystery and your perception is wider than the world as it is presented; possibly you can understand and read a situation as being very meaningful, but also very ordinary.

To lay burdens down for a time and to rest with God, sometimes in silence, sometimes finding just the words to articulate feelings, we give ourselves a chance to consider the question. Other considerations that may arise out of a time of reflection may make you consider, depending on who God is for you, that you find your decisions and choices are influenced by Him. At the centre of spiritual direction conversations is finding out where the heart lies in relation to the Holy Spirit and to discern the movement of the spirit in our life, to make connections and to broaden our vision. Rather like taking the trouble to climb to the top of the tower to see the broader and deeper perspective that the view from the top affords us by not lingering on the ground floor with no, or very limited, view.

A sense of God's presence in our lives might then help us to decide whether we need to take some kind of action, to take some responsibility for our own faith and to engage in different ways with those around us.
