Sunday 18th January marks the beginning of the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity. It seems remarkable that as Christians we all share in the same faith yet there are so many divisions and denominations. We all have preferences for how we like to worship and over time these develop into church traditions. And traditions can become more important than faith. Jesus warned the Pharisees about their outward show being more important than God's teaching, especially as regards loving one's neighbour (Matt 23). And yet divisions between the followers of Jesus have, over the centuries, led to wars between countries and within countries. And this is not always centuries ago, remember the Troubles in Northern Ireland.

We thank God that there are now more moves to build bridges. More discussions between church leaders, more times when church members come together. More opportunities to see that there is more that joins us together than there is that separates us.

The World Council of Churches organises this one week each year when internationally churches will pray for each other and for closer unity. This year the prayers and services have been produced by the Armenian Apostolic Church, a member of the community of Orthodox Churches. In Newport our churches will meet for a combined service on Sunday 18th January in St Nicholas Church and during the following week there will be prayer stations and displays in the church. An opportunity for us to worship together and to meet up with old friends and make new ones. We pray for God's blessing on us all.
