Letter From The Rectory, October 2026

I am terrified of heights. Even looking over the bannisters in the Rectory can make my knees turn to jelly - so imagine me walking along a cliff edge. Years ago a video was circulating on Facebook of a coach trying to negotiate some dreadful S bends on a mountain road. I remember watching it, my heart doing a somersault as the coach missed one of the turns and ended up suspended between the road and sheer emptiness below. I went into a panic just seeing it on a screen, and I wasn't even there. Imagine what it must have been like for the driver and the passengers.

And yet living on the edge is exactly what life feels like - particularly now, as we become acutely aware of the state of our world. Nothing is certain. Nothing lasts forever. We brace ourselves for the next major concern that could arise anywhere: war, famine, drought, flooding, landslides, and so much more. These pressures leave us feeling as though we are constantly walking along a precipice. How do we cope with that? For some of us, and I include myself, being on the edge sharpens our senses. Our instincts kick in: step back onto solid ground, steady yourself, and carry on. But it can also be the place where we become more aware of God, who holds us firmly if we allow him to. So often it is on the edge that we discover Christ waiting for us, ready to draw us into his comforting, life giving arms. God has been there all along; we simply notice him more clearly when we find ourselves staring over the drop.

Martin Wallace, the retired Bishop of Selby, once said, "When we are at the edge, we see horizons which are denied to those who stay in their comfort zones." As a teenager, Martin was frequently in trouble at school and involved in a London gang. Then, at seventeen, he had a vision of Jesus hanging on the cross. Everything changed. His walk with Christ began, leading him into more than forty five years of ministry. It was while he was living on the edge that Christ revealed himself to Martin - and, I suspect, rescued him from what could have been a very different and far more difficult future.

Many people around us live on the edge every day. They may be lonely, depressed, grieving, despairing, or caught up in crime. Can we reach out to them? Do we even know where they are? Jesus lived on the edge, and he was masterful at seeking out those who didn't fit the 'norm' - the ostracised, the unwelcome, the unloved. They found him, and he found them, surviving on the margins, and he brought them home. My hope is that we, too, can do the same.

With every blessing

Revd Lynda,

A view from the fly on the Church wall

How have you coped with the hot summer? Perhaps you enjoyed the endless sunny days.... Or maybe you struggled with the excessive heat, having to hide indoors from the strength of the sun. Even then, out of the glare of the sun, with the windows open, it felt oppressive as there was no breeze. Have your gardens suffered from the lack of rain?

I recently visited Wimpole Hall and Anglesey Abbey and even those beautiful gardens were showing the affects of the heat wave, with many plants and even established shrubs wilting and looking sorry for themselves. In the churchyard we have two beautiful tulip trees, usually looking the picture of health, producing their stunning flowers, which are a delight to behold if you can spot them. They haven't bloomed this year, and they have even shed all their leaves in early August. I have heard people say that in this instance that the trees/shrubs are in shock.

The loss of leaves in very hot conditions is a way of preserving what moisture a plant has, because moisture evaporates from the leaves. It is still shocking to see magnificent trees and shrubs in such distress.

Also the wildlife has suffered, particularly the insects, which in turn affect the birds and bats. Many of you will have left out containers of water for the animals and insects.

Will summers in the future be hot like this one?

Probably.

All we can do is our own little bit in preserving this wonderful creation in which we live.

"O Lord, help us to tread gently on your earth."

Peter

TANG TING TWINNING ASSOCIATION

You may all have been worrying about our friends in Tang Ting since the recent disaster. We would just like you to know that, thankfully, Tang Ting has NOT been directly affected. However our hearts and prayers go out to those who have lost so much.

There has been lots going on behind the scenes with the charity since the tragic and sudden passing of our late president, Cllr Tina Knight. Over the next few months, we will update you on some of our exciting news.

Loose Gravestones in the Churchyard

Over time, a number of gravestones in the churchyard have become unstable as a result of their age and weathering. To help ensure the safety of everyone visiting the churchyard, we are looking to address this issue with care and sensitivity.

If you are a relative or representative of any of those commemorated by the gravestones listed below, we would be very grateful if you could contact Reverend Lynda to discuss the most appropriate way forward. We appreciate your understanding and assistance as we work to preserve the churchyard while ensuring it remains a safe place for all visitors.

PETER'S MUSINGS – OCTOBER 2026

"Your old men will dream dreams." So says the prophet, Joel. Not dreams that fade with morning light, but vivid, enduring visions that withstand the test of time.

A few years ago, I had such a dream—one of personal revelation. I found myself as a deepsea diver among many other divers, all wandering across the ocean floor. We wore heavy helmets that were useless in the darkness, and leaden boots that pinned us down so we could not rise. We groped our way forward, occasionally bumping into one another, directionless and without hope.

Then suddenly, a hand reached down from above. I grasped it instinctively and was lifted to the surface. Through my visor I saw, for the first time, another world—one filled with trees and hills, bathed in sunlight and colour. What joy. What contrast to the dim, burdened life below.

My first impulse was to dive back down and tell the others. I told them, "To take off your boots—release the weight that holds you down." And as they rose, they too discovered a world of light, hope, and possibility.

Such is the experience of emerging into new life with Jesus: joy, direction, hope. But this awakening is only possible because people of faith share what they have seen. Today's 2.4 billion Christians are the fruit of a few dozen disciples who, two thousand years ago, simply told others what they had witnessed—and of millions more who continued that witness through the centuries. Faith is not a private treasure to be hidden away, but a movement from could be to shall be—a transformation entrusted to each of us, not left for someone else. The hand that stretches out could be your hand.

Euripides captures something of this longing for light in his book, Four Lessons: Megara: "You love the light so much." Amphitryon: "Yes— I love its hopes."

Blessings

Peter

Toebeans - Help Us Keep the Purrs Going

Every cat who arrives at our door gets the full VIP treatment: safety, warmth, medical care, and a foster home filled with love. We like to think of it as the feline version of a five-star hotel, but with more purring.

But providing this level of care - neutering, vaccinations, health checks, food, litter, and emergency support - now costs far more than our adoption fees can cover. Even cats can't escape rising prices, it seems!

Even with careful budgeting, the rising costs of veterinary treatment, specialist care, and essential supplies mean we've had to make the difficult decision to increase our adoption fees which ensures every cat continues to receive the gold-standard care they deserve before finding their forever home.

As a small volunteer-run charity, we simply can't absorb these rising costs alone. That's why we're asking our wonderful community to help us continue the work we love - because every cat deserves a happily ever after, and maybe a few extra treats. Please consider making a donation or share our appeal to enable us to continue to help the cats that need us the most.

Eco Church - Autumn

While most of our native species have now had their young, there are still a few species which are only now hatching. Reptiles such as grass snakes hatch in late summer. Do look out for snakelets. They are independent from hatching and may be found hunting near ponds and streams.

In the aquatic environment, the caddisflies are hatching. With nearly 200 species found in the UK, these have spent all summer in our lakes, ponds and rivers. Some make cases to live in, spun from stones, leaves and twigs. In their adult form, they help our land species to bulk up for winter.

Another good source of food come from Daddy longlegs (craneflies), which will be emerging from real grass lawns. They don't have much of a life as adults. They barely eat and simply mate and die. Females can lay up to 300 eggs each. Their young are known as leatherjackets, a favourite food for many of our smaller mammals such as hedgehogs.

Hedgehogs have their litters in late summer, so young hoglets can be active in autumn. They need to put a lot of weight on to survive winter. If you find a hedgehog out during the day, please contact a local wildlife rescue or take it to the hedgehog hospital at Shepreth Wildlife Park.

Red, Fallow and Sika deer start their rutting season. This is a time when we should all take extra care on the roads as rutting deer can be unpredictable. Vehicle collisions injure or kill 42,000-74,000 deer annually, injuring hundreds of people and occasionally causing human fatalities. If you hit a deer the best thing to do is tell the police on 101, unless it is obstructing the road, in which case dial 999. Do not approach the deer.

Anyone visiting the coast at this time of year for the bird migration may find young seal pups from grey seals along the coastline and estuaries. Hamford Water Nature Reserve is a good place to see them here in Essex.

In Loving Memory of Brian Hare (Bunny)

21st April 1942 - 5th August 2026

It is with great sadness that we announce the passing of Bunny Hare, a well-loved member of our church and a familiar face throughout Wimbish and the surrounding villages.

Although born in Derby during a wartime air raid, Bunny spent the majority of his life here in Essex. For many years, he was a regular and steady presence at church. Even when health challenges made attendance difficult in his later years, he maintained a strong, quiet connection to the congregation and the local community.

Family was central to Bunny's life. He was a dedicated father, grandfather, and great-grandfather who took great delight in watching each generation grow, always celebrating their interests and achievements. Known for his calm, patient nature and gentle sense of humour, he had a natural gift for making people feel comfortable and welcome.

In his youth, Bunny played guitar in a band, which is how he first met his wife, Jenny. They married in 1965 and shared 61 years of marriage together - a wonderful testament to their lifelong partnership and deep companionship.

Bunny was also a man of remarkable practical talents. He found great satisfaction in his garden, a hobby that perfectly suited his patient and observant nature. In his workshop, he was an exceptional wood craftsman who took immense pride in precise, detailed work, notably creating a beautiful walnut veneer box for Jenny. He also brought his artistic eye to cake decorating, creating intricate designs that were full of personality.

Bunny's kindness, craftsmanship, and steady presence will be deeply missed by his family, friends, and neighbours.

A prayer of peace and eternal safekeeping

The Lord bless you and keep you
the Lord make His face shine on you and be gracious to you the Lord turn his face toward you
and give you peace.

District Councillor's Report

Meet Your Councillor: A Conversation with Stewart Luck

If you have spent any time in our community, you will likely know Cllr Stewart Luck. From navigating the skies as a commercial pilot to steering local village initiatives, Stewart has dedicated decades to our area.

Stewart's connection to the area began when he arrived to work at Stansted Airport in 1973. After living in local lodgings and buying his first house in Saffron Walden in 1976, he finally settled in Debden in 1980 at the age of 30. "I soon had a family and became fully integrated into village life through the playschool and primary school," Stewart recalls. "The entire village was incredibly welcoming, and there were so many wonderful clubs and sports to get involved with." By the time he turned 40, Stewart felt a strong desire to give back to the community that had embraced his family. Believing he had meaningful skills to offer, he stepped forward and was initially co-opted onto the Parish Council, beginning a long tenure of local public service.

Outside of his standard council duties, Stewart's professional life and hobbies have always revolved around aviation - specifically, making it safer. "Life expectancy for airshow pilots was not very good in the 1970s," Stewart explains. Driven to change this, he took action and started an organisation dedicated to introducing higher safety standards to the industry. Transitioning from the cockpit to the ground, he became the Lead Safety Officer for major national airshows, including Exeter, Bournemouth, and Portrush in Northern Ireland.

While these massive events frequently took him away from home, Stewart always brought his organising talents back to his roots. He has run several village fetes in Debden over the years, and recently, took the lead on organising the Newport Fireworks display for the 2025/2026 season.

While Stewart represents both Debden and Wimbish, he emphasises that certain vital institutions unite both areas. For him, the local parish churches remain a cornerstone of community life. "Society seems to have taken the view lately that the church doesn't matter, but I entirely disagree," Stewart says. "While I have my own personal views on religion and am not known for regularly attending Sunday services, I strongly believe that the churches in both Wimbish and Debden are incredibly important assets. They are there for absolutely everyone. They are places where anyone can go to find hope, support, and charity when it is needed most."

When asked to pinpoint the single greatest strength of the local community, Stewart kindly highlighted the village magazine as a vital communication lifeline. "This might sound corny," Stewart said, "but this magazine is the single greatest asset we have."

Thank you Stewart. The church tries hard to create a publication that keeps residents informed and connected with events happening in the church and the village.
